

What is IPS?

The Individualised Placement Support (IPS) model is a place and train model of supported employment that rapidly helps you get a job that meets your needs.

Employment specialists tailor their support to each individual so that clients have the best chance of achieving their job aspirations.

- IPS helps you get a job that meets your needs – IPS employment specialists use a personalised, strength-based approach so that each individual has the best chance of securing a job of their choosing.
- IPS aims to help you find a paid job within just weeks of being referred to the service.
- IPS provides ongoing support to the employer and the employee to help you stay in work.
- Advisors have the time and space to offer you intensive support.
- Suitable work is good for wellbeing – getting back into work has been proven to improve people's mental health, financial independence, and quality of life.
